

Dennis Rumohr's Schedule

I am a little behind my turn in dates but I am right where I should be with the mindset of where we are in class. I just wanted to write this real quick to make sure you know I am still in the loop and going to finish strong. Basically and quickly, I am going to write my week7 page results next week along with the week8, week9, and week10 content. I finished my 4 card sortings and have a great idea of different perspectives to take. My week8 dash labs and text file of content is flowing through my mind. Then my week9 wireframes and how I am going to organize will come right after and I have good ideas for it all. Then my final will come together well.

I am just writing so you know I am going to finish strong and getting late grades is okay because the final project specifics are coming together well.

I just need to catch up in my other class which is too close for comfort so I can graduate so you know. Just keeping you in the loop and so I have something on github for now.
